Love them or hate them, we seem to be obsessed by celebrities these days – and not just film stars and pop musicians but people who seem to be famous just for being famous (I’m looking at you Paris Hilton and Michaele Salahi), the offspring of failed Vice-Presidential candidates and boys from Jersey with improbable names and haircuts. Even if celeb-watching is not your thing, it’s hard to escape – newspapers, television news, radio shows, not to mention countless websites devote tremendous space to chronicling the exploits of the famous. What is it about celebrity, fandom, and fame that makes us unable to look away? Switch off TMZ and read one of these books:

March 2010

Women's History Month: 2010

The public celebration of women's history in this country began in 1978 as “Women's History Week” in Sonoma County, California. The week included March 8, which was also International Women’s Day. In 1981 Sen. Orrin Hatch (R-Utah) and Rep. Barbara Mikulski (D-Md.) co-sponsored a joint Congressional resolution proclaiming a national Women's History Month, which congress expanded in 1987 to a monthly celebration with March being dedicated Women's History Month.
